"Talking About Adjectives"

Ladies and gentleman... Random presents: Adjectives. Adjectives are describing words, as you may know. But they can be used in many, many, many ways. Listen up.

We're talking about

Size, like tiny; Opinion, like wise;

Feelings, like happy, sad or otherwise;

Age, like antique; Color, like brown.

Adjectives are words that describe nouns. (x2)

Sometimes you just need more info,

You need words to keep descriptions from being simple.

And they're asking the reasoning,

Think of words as food, and adjectives? They would be the seasoning.

One time I had a little puppy,

Six-month-old Collie by the name of Lucky.

Every day we would run and frolic all playfully,

'Til I lost my grip on the leash, she got away from me.

Made signs to put up around the neighborhood,

Hoping someone saw her and she wouldn't stay away for good.

Without those describing words,

I don't think I would've had a chance of finding her.

Something you need to know before you write it down,
Adjectives will more than likely come before a noun.
The big bad wolf? Big and bad are adjectives,
Stir 'em in the pot, no artificial additives.
Hear my advice and take this,
Master the basics and watch your grades rise like cake mix.
Any good recipes got those in the mixture,
And those are descriptors so now you get the picture.

Last thing I'll add which is definitely worth mentioning,
Adjectives usually describe intensity.
Add an -er, an -est,
Now it's nicer, or the nicest thing that I've ever seen.
Brighter than the bright light, that would be the brightest,
Grammar is free, but adjectives are priceless.
Thank you for listening, and remember this,
If you enjoy something, be sure you can describe it!
